Choose one of the letters in the text and write a reply. Give them advice on how to make things better. Communication is key. You may think you and your mother-in-law will never like each other, but you need to talk to one another before you decide. When you cook only for yourself, you may think you are taking care of yourself while letting your mother-in-law take care of your husband, but she probably views it as selfish. You should make enough for everyone. Of course, if things don't work out in spite of your best efforts, you don't have to make yourself miserable by staying in a bad marriage.

What do you think is important in a romantic relationship?

I think it is important to be patient with each other and to respect one another. Both people in the relationship have a right to privacy, but they also have a duty to be honest with each other. They should buy meaningful presents for each other, and always be available if their partner needs help.

Do you need advice for any of your problems? Write a short letter to Agony Aunt about a problem you are having.

Dear Agony Aunt,

I am at my wit's end. The girl that I love has an identical twin sister, and sometimes they pretend to be each other. Now I cannot remember which one is which, and neither twin will admit which of them it was that I fell in love with. They have told me that unless I work out which one of them it was, it's all over, but I really cannot tell, and on top of this, I cannot remember their names. What should I do in this situation?

Yours perplexedly,

"At my wit's end"
